gestion, such a semi-professional or-ganization as the Workers Theatre

The surprising feature about Miss Marie Cahill's performances in the Palace Theatre yesterday was not that they expected-but her songs and patter were entirely new. At a time when many other entertainers in vaudeville with tal-ent less than Miss Cahill in years but greater in bumptiousness, are using the same "novelties" which they have had for five years or more, Miss Cahill dis-penses a brand new line of laughmakers. To show how up-to-date she was she sang a song about the ouija board and gave a burlesque of crystal gazing that would have made even a spook grin
